

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a lutein solubilized product comprised of one part, which consists of a lutein-containing composition, and of approximately 7 to approximately 9 parts polysorbate, and to a method for the production thereof, during which a lutein-containing composition is mixed with approximately seven to nine times the amount of polysorbate until obtaining homogeneity.